Using the Nova Scotia Assessment: Analytic Writing Rubric

The rubric includes four criteria (Ideas, Organization, Language Use, and Conventions), and there are four levels of performance for each criterion. Level 3 and above is the expectation for writing assessments, so it's important to look at these levels first when reviewing the rubric. The following information is provided to teachers prior to scoring student writing at provincial scoring sessions. It may also be helpful for teachers who wish to use this rubric with students in their classrooms. Please keep in mind that the expectations for specific assessments are anchored in the writing samples in a scoring guide, as they are relative to specific grade levels (end of grades 3, 5, 8). The scoring guide provides two student writing samples that illustrate each performance level outlined in the rubric. A sample scoring guide is available in Appendix G of this document.

- 1) Read the rubric as a whole before looking at each criterion in more detail.
- 2) Ideas: Read the four levels of performance under Ideas. Ideas includes the presence and quality of a main idea, the extent to which the main idea is developed through details, and the quality of the details used to support the main idea.
- 3) Underline the elements that are same across all four levels in Ideas: main idea, developed, details
- 4) Circle key words that are unique to each level in Ideas:
  - a. Level 3: clear, relevant
  - b. Level 4: distinct, vivid, relevant
  - c. Level 2: evident, somewhat, may be irrelevant (Even if details are relevant, a piece of writing can be a Level 2 if it's only somewhat developed.)
  - d. Level 1: not present, or, not developed
- 5) Organization: Read the four levels of performance under Organization. Organization includes the way the writing is organized as a whole as well as how it is organized throughout (internal and external organization). There should be a beginning, middle, and end and a logical sequence between ideas. Transitions include transitional words or phrases, but also the way the writer transitions from one idea to the next.
- 6) Underline the elements that are same across all four levels in Organization: writing, organized/organization, transitions
- 7) Circle key words that are unique to each level in Organization:
  - a. Level 3: effective, varied
  - b. Level 4: skillfully, skillful, varied
  - c. Level 2: somewhat, vague, and/or mechanical (Even if transitions are not vague or mechanical,
    - a piece of writing can be a Level 2 if it's only somewhat organized.)
  - d. Level 1: lacking, little or no evidence
- 8) Language Use: Read the four levels of performance under Language Use. Language Use includes voice, word choice, sentence style, syntax. Sentence structure is considered in terms of writing style in this criterion, not the grammatical correctness of sentence structure since correctness is assessed under the Conventions criterion.

- 9) Underline the elements that are same across all four levels in Language Use: Language use, writing
- 10) Circle key words that are unique to each level in Language Use:
  - a. Level 3: clear, fluid
  - b. Level 4: vivid, skillful
  - c. Level 2: vague, and/or mechanical
  - d. Level 1: confusing, or, little evidence of language use
- 11) Conventions: Read the four levels of performance under Conventions. Conventions includes spelling of commonly used words (including homonyms), punctuation, capitalization, sentence structure, verb tense agreement, noun/pronoun agreement these are grounded in what's appropriate for a given grade level
- 12) Underline the elements that are same across all four levels in Conventions: conventions, communication
- 13) Circle key words that are unique to each level in Conventions:
  - a. Level 3: variety, generally correct, effective
  - b. Level 4: variety, consistently correct, enhanced
  - c. Level 2: errors, noticeable, coherent
  - d. Level 1: errors, confusing, or, little evidence of conventions
- 14) Not Enough Evidence: This designation would only be used in rare cases when there is not enough evidence to assess a student's writing (e.g., indecipherable, blank paper, response written in a language other than the language being assessed).

Once teachers have become familiar with the rubric, they may wish to use it in their classrooms to support student writing. Looking at the rubric with students may facilitate useful conversations about Ideas, Organization, Language Use, and Conventions and how these elements work together in a piece of writing. Through these discussions, writing samples (either students' own samples or scoring guide samples) could be used to illustrate the various writing components outlined in the rubric. When students have an opportunity to engage in these conversations, they may begin to enhance their own writing processes.

Using the Nova Scotia Assessment: Scoring Guide Sample

Student writing is scored using the analytic writing rubric and scoring guide. It is important to have a solid understanding of the analytic writing rubric before reviewing the scoring guide. The scoring guide includes the writing prompt and two samples at each performance level in the following order: Level 4, 3, 2, 1. Please note that permissions have been obtained for the student writing samples in the following scoring guide.

Although adherence to writing task is important during classroom instruction and assessment, it is important to note that this is not the focus of provincial writing assessments. Provincial assessment writing prompts are designed to allow for a broad interpretation of the prompt. This allows students from across the province with a variety of life experiences to connect to the prompt in some way so they can provide a response that can be assessed for writing quality based on the rubric (ideas, organization, language use, and conventions).

Each writing sample includes an annotation at the bottom of the page that provides the rationale for the scores using language from the rubric and the student's writing. Level 3 and above is the expectation for writing assessments, so it's important to look at these levels first when reviewing the scoring guide. Below are a few suggestions for reviewing the scoring guide:

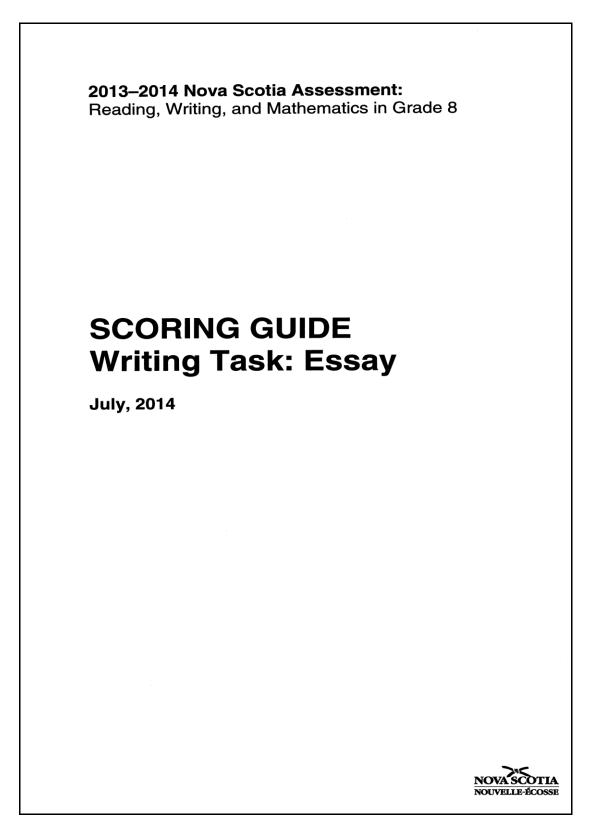

- 1) Review the rubric criteria for Level 3 in Ideas, Organization, Language Use, and Conventions
- 2) Read the Level 3 Scoring Guide samples and annotations
- 3) Review the rubric criteria for Level 4 in Ideas, Organization, Language Use, and Conventions
- 4) Read the Level 4 Scoring Guide samples and annotations
- 5) Review the rubric criteria for Level 2 in Ideas, Organization, Language Use, and Conventions
- 6) Read the Level 2 Scoring Guide samples and annotations
- 7) Review the rubric criteria for Level 1 in Ideas, Organization, Language Use, and Conventions
- 8) Read the Level 1 Scoring Guide samples and annotations

Once teachers become familiar with the scoring guide, they may wish to use some of the writing samples with their students for talking about elements of writing.

Since writing is personal and involves risk-taking, students may be more comfortable critiquing anonymous writing samples from the scoring guide. After students have had an opportunity to understand the rubric, teachers could begin with showing them a sample of writing at Level 3, Level 4, then Level 2 and Level 1. (This would be spaced out over several mini-lessons at the teacher's discretion.) The samples could anchor some wonderful conversations about what students notice about how main ideas are developed through supportive details, as well as other elements of writing. The level 2 and 1 samples could be used as a springboard for students to discuss how the writing could be enhanced in each of the criterion of the rubric. Finally, once students have had an opportunity to engage in these discussions with teachers about writing, they should feel more comfortable to begin pulling out some of their own writing from their portfolios. They could work with an existing piece of writing from their writing portfolio to focus on each criterion at a time to gradually enhance the same piece of writing each time. Students can engage in peer review and conversations to support their revisions. At the end of the process, they will be able to compare their original piece of writing with the revised piece of writing and reflect on their process and progress.

Writing Task: Essay

Some people believe that youth would benefit from being actively engaged in their communities. As a result, some high schools in Canada and the United States require students to complete community involvement activities or volunteer work<sup>1</sup> in order to graduate from high school. For example, students in British Columbia must complete 30 hours of volunteer work before graduation and students in Ontario must complete 40 hours of volunteer work in order to graduate. Should volunteer work be a requirement for high school graduation?

Instructions: Write an essay supporting why you think volunteer work<sup>1</sup> should OR should not be a requirement for high school graduation.

1. volunteer work: providing a service without being paid for it (e.g., reading to children at a hospital, helping a community plant a garden, delivering groceries or doing yard work for senior citizens, cleaning cages at an animal shelter)

Tips:

- Be sure to respond to the instructions above.
- Be sure to explain and support your ideas.
- Be sure to present your ideas in an organized manner.
- Be sure to choose your words carefully.
- Be sure to use correct spelling, grammar, and punctuation.
- Use no more than the three pages provided.

- Ideas (4): A main idea is distinct and is developed through vivid and relevant details: The writer acknowledges positive and negative aspects of requiring volunteer work for high school graduation, but then argues that the "the positive outcomes heavily outweigh the negative." This main idea is developed through vivid and relevant details ("it is a capitol idea...it can assist with job hunts or more education...can also inspire young teens to pursue a career...).
- Organization (4): The writing is skillfully organized with skillful use of varied transitions: There is a solid introduction followed by skillfully organized paragraphs and a concluding paragraph. Internal organization is also skillful throughout with topic sentences being supported by relevant details. Transitions within and between paragraphs are skillfully used ("Despite all of the previously listed negative outcomes of the volunteer work, I still think it is a capitol idea.").
- Language Use (4): Language use contributes to vivid and skillful writing: "A lot of High School students don't know what they will do when they graduate, and by doing mandatory jobs in order to graduate, they could find their niche, and discover what they're really good at and actually enjoy."
- Conventions (4): The writing consistently demonstrates correct use of a variety of conventions.

A lot of High School students don't know what they will do when they graduate, and by doing mandatory jobs in order to graduate, they could find they niche, and really discover what they're really good at and actually enjoy. Soyyes, I definitely think required volunteer work is a magneficent idea. In a few years when I have to complete hours of work, I probably will think it's a horrid idea created by sadists who like to watch pathetic teens suffer. Organization (3): The writing is organized with effective use of varied transitions: The first paragraph introduces ideas that are developed throughout the essay and the concluding paragraph leaves readers with a final thought about the power of volunteering to influence communities and generations. Effective transitions are used throughout ("First,....Now they've begun volunteering!"). Language Use (3): Language use contributes to clear and fluid writing: The writing is clear and fluid throughout ("It can motivate the kids to become part of their community more and try to make a

- Organization (3): The writing is organized with effective use of varied transitions: The writing is organized effectively with an introductory paragraph, body paragraphs, and a concluding paragraph.
  There is also internal organization within paragraphs, and a variety of transitions are used throughout ("For example....It might also help...").
- Language Use (3): Language use contributes to clear and fluid writing: "It might also help them become more independent, depending on the volunteering they chose to do."
- Conventions (3): The writing generally demonstrates correct use of a variety of conventions.

Day 1 | Page 17 2/2 might help them with that decision. If volunteered for a certain thing and really enjoyed it then they may want to choose career in that field. They may have done volupteering for something they thought they enjoy, but, they ended up not enjoying would it. If they're applying applying for a job and they're resume of volunteer hais work are probably more likely to get the ob. stronalu bel volunteer work should be mandatory to graduate from highschool. The detail, "Theres plenty of jobs in the world that I'm sure would be happy getting a new partner at their job" is irrelevant and is not developed to support the main idea. Organization (2): The writing is somewhat organized with vague or mechanical transitions: Although there are some elements of organization, the repetition of "I think" and "I know" are mechanical transitions. Language Use (2): Language use contributes to vague or mechanical writing: "I think that it would be a huge change for some teens to get a job....that I'm sure would be happy getting a new partner at their job" illustrates vague language use.

Conventions (2): Errors in conventions are noticeable, but communication is coherent: There are a few very basic convention errors throughout ("a effort....your....experiance....theres....when I'm old enough to").

- Organization (2): The writing is somewhat organized with vague or mechanical transitions: The piece is somewhat organized, but it is missing the majority of the body as well as a conclusion. The transitions are mechanical ("It can...It may ... It would ... ").
- Language Use (2): Language use contributes to vague or mechanical writing: The writing is vague ("It would be good for those whom may listening, that you did something economically for your home town or city").
- Conventions (2): Errors in conventions are noticeable, but communication is coherent: "sinor, provent, resama, collage" are examples of spelling errors, and sentence structure issues are also evident (run-on sentence, missing word endings and punctuation).

Language Use (1): Language use contributes to confusing writing: Word choice contributes to confusion ("Volunteer working should be alowed....why it is good to help others..."). Conventions (1): Errors in conventions contribute to confusing writing: Spelling errors such as "chours, clleaning....was....butter place" as well as missing words contribute to confusing writing. When thinking about "confusing writing," it is important to note that there is a difference between simply being able to decode the writer's words and being able to understand the writer's meaning.
